About the Film

A Story of Medicine, Heritage, and Human Connection

America's Dermatologist is a 15-minute documentary film directed by Manuel Izquierdo and completed on November 10, 2025. Filmed in the United States in both English and Spanish, the film follows Dr. Anna Chacon's journey from a Miami-based physician to a nationally recognized teledermatology pioneer, exploring how family sacrifice, cultural heritage, and a profound sense of purpose shaped her path in medicine.

The film is a compelling portrait of Dr. Anna Chacon, a renowned dermatologist whose mission challenges traditional boundaries of healthcare by refusing geography, circumstance, or conventional methods of care to limit access to treatment to her patients. Intertwining Dr. Chacon's rich family medical legacy with the powerful story of one of her most compelling patient journeys, the documentary unveils the human impact of dermatology, highlighting its profound connection to health, self-confidence, identity, and quality of life.

At a time when many patients face long wait times, limited specialist access, and geographic barriers to care, America's Dermatologist poses a timely and important question: What does truly accessible, patient-centered healthcare look like when medicine extends beyond the walls of the clinic?

Film Synopsis

Dr. Anna Chacón, a proud Hispanic-American dermatologist based in Miami, broke barriers in one of medicine's most exclusive fields dermatology. The film follows her journey of resilience and cultural pride as she builds a national telehealth practice and brings care to patients across the United States. Interweaving stories from her family's medical legacy and one of her most remarkable patients, the documentary explores how heritage, compassion, and perseverance shaped her path and what she hopes to achieve next in making dermatology more accessible to all.

Short Press Release Summary

America’s Dermatologist Documentary Spotlights the Lifesaving Power of Telemedicine and Cross-Border Empathy

MIAMI, FL — Award-winning short documentary America’s Dermatologist officially enters its global distribution and community screening tour. Directed by Manuel Izquierdo and produced by Dr. Anna Chacón, the compelling 15-minute film pulls back the curtain on modern healthcare inequities. It captures Dr. Chacón’s historic journey as a board-certified, Hispanic-American dermatologist who broke industry barriers to establish a virtual medical practice licensed across all 50 U.S. states, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Bilingual in English and Spanish, the documentary weaves together a powerful narrative of healthcare accessibility, family legacy, and patient advocacy. Inspired by her father’s groundbreaking medical work in South Florida and her own travels treating remote Indigenous populations, Dr. Chacón showcases how digital innovation can bring vital, specialized care to the country’s most isolated communities. Already recognized on the festival circuit, including winning Best Documentary at the Athens International Monthly Film Festival, America’s Dermatologist is now available for university, medical school, and community screening bookings.

About Dr. Anna Chacon

Board-certified dermatologist, telemedicine pioneer, and advocate for accessible, patient-centered care.

Dr. Anna Chacon, MD, FAAD, is a board-certified dermatologist specializing in medical, surgical, and cosmetic dermatology, with services offered both in person in Miami and through teledermatology across all 50 states of the U.S.

Born and raised in Miami, Dr. Anna Chacon was inspired to pursue medicine by her father, a critical care physician in South Florida, who showed her that healthcare is both a profession and a calling.

Her medical journey includes studies at Brown University's Program in Liberal Medical Education, a research fellowship at the University of Miami, surgical internship training, and a dermatology residency at Los Angeles County + University of Southern California Medical Center, where she served as Chief Resident.

America's Dermatologist is also a testament to Dr. Chacon's professional legacy, highlighting her impact as one of the nation's leading dermatologists.

Director Statement

This documentary explores Dr. Anna Chacón's journey as a Hispanic-American dermatologist breaking into one of medicine's most exclusive fields. What drew me to her story was the blend of heritage, perseverance, and genuine compassion that fuels her mission. I felt a similar struggle breaking into the industry especially in the commercial space. Through her family's sacrifices, her father's unwavering dedication to patients, and her work helping people across the U.S. including those with rare and life-altering conditions Dr. Anna shows that dermatology is far more than aesthetics. It is care, identity, and service. This film aims to spotlight the humanity behind her work and the communities she uplifts.
